

Story Baskets

We have a culture of storytelling. We have many stories to tell.

Families are children's first teachers...

telling viewing

*Click here to insert
your own image of
your children
taking part in oral storytelling*

art making

*Click here to insert
your own image of
your children telling stories through art or making stories*

Sharing stories extends vocabulary and learning...

Children are immersed in a
language-rich
environment
from birth...

dancing singing

*Click here to insert
your own image of
your children telling
a story through dance or song*

listening reading

*Click here to insert
your own image of
your children reading or listening to a story*

Through
stories we get to know each other
and make meaning of the world...

Families use
their home languages to nurture, teach and tell stories...

Families share stories and knowledge to support children's development...

Every individual
child and their individual home language are valued...

Home
language is a strength to be built upon...

Families are the first storytellers. Families tell traditional stories, or contemporary stories with wit and humour...

Successful partnerships can be formed through acknowledging First Nations cultures and traditions and building on these strengths...